Ee Shaun's artworks in abstraction reflect his fundamental approach to painting as an experiential, non-conceptual and improvised activity. The titles of this artwork suggest the artist acknowledging the relentless and enduring human need for control, while realising that the intricacies of life are technically still beyond our grasp. After all, we are continually subjected to universal sea changes and fluctuations. As the artist concludes - you just don't know it yet - 'Life really is in many ways like an abstract painting; we all make choices along the way, without always knowing the final outcome.'
